

Adding StreamOnce to Jive transforms how your Marketing team shares and generates data. By connecting the company's email to Jive, you're igniting your team's ability to collaborate. No longer will valuable pieces of information be locked away in various systems.

StreamOnce integrates all data and communications into your Marketing team's collaborative space within Jive.

Constantly Connected.

Even if half your marketing team communicates by email, and the other half uses Dropbox, StreamOnce integrates everything into your team's Jive account. No matter which system you're using, the data shows up where your marketing team can act on it.

Searchable.

No more scrolling through multiple emails. No more chasing data across multiple platforms. StreamOnce transforms Jive into a searchable database. The relevant files, the latest revisions—all where they should be.

Incorporate Partners and Vendors.

StreamOnce lets your Marketing team incorporate selected partners and vendors into their Jive account. Working with an outside PR agency? These external emails and files will automatically be directed to your Marketing team's collaborative space.

What happens when you connect email to Jive?

For this Marketing team, it meant being saved from a costly PR mistake.

Ken, Outside Marketing Consultant

Simon, Head of Creative

Katherina, Head of Marketing Team

The screenshot shows the Jive interface for 'Self-Signup streamonce.com'. The main activity stream displays an email notification from Ken Clinton: "[Email] New collateral please review and approve on Feb 13, 2013 5:29:28 PM". The email content is visible, showing a request for approval of marketing collateral. Below the email, there are three comments: Simon Davis (to Ken Clinton) approving the document, and Katherina Smith intervening to prevent publication of a different file with legal comments.

1. Ken needs Marketing team to approve the latest PR for publication.

2. The email automatically shows up within the Marketing place inside Jive.

3. Simon reviews and sends his approval all within Jive. Ken who doesn't use Jive- gets an email from Simon.

4. Katherina realizes they're about to publish the wrong copy. She intervenes just in time.

5. Disaster averted! Streamonce sent all emails and files straight to Jive.